what's inside

The June issue highlights faith and family, including

- a devotion on how fathers can continue to be faith encouragers, even when their children are grown (p. 5);
- a reminder of the importance of having a church home for your family (p. 7);
- a Bible study on the value of the family altar in a child's Christian training (p. 15); and
- a look at parenting as a vocation (p. 16).

With Father's Day being celebrated this month, it's a great time to invite others to dig into one (or all) of these topics during a Sunday morning Bible class, at a men's Bible breakfast, or in another small-group setting.

WELSCONNECTIONS

June's WELS Connection highlights how Immanuel, Waukegan, Ill., with help from a WELS Christian Aid and Relief grant, is helping serve both the spiritual and physical needs of its members and neighbors during this pandemic. Forward in Christ's pages will share other creative ways WELS congregations are showing Christian love in their communities, like constructing a Blessing Box to share food and necessities—including free Bibles (p. 21).

EXPLORE JUNE 2021 ARTICLES

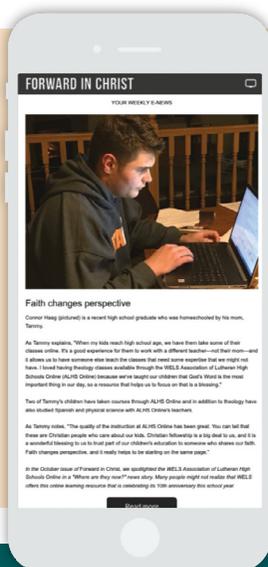

Meet Jason Jasper, a WELS member who works to bring God's Word to life through his art (p. 18).

What do we do when we gather for worship? Seminary professor Jonathan Micheel discusses the patterns of praise we can follow through the liturgy (p. 10).

God's Word is truth. So why do so many reject parts of the Bible that are difficult to understand or conflict with their viewpoints? Dig into this topic on p. 12.
